Abstract

A retrospective review of specimens of radical prostatectomy that where biopsy al Fundación Santa Fe de Bogotá was performed. A total of 107 reports were available for revue, and where divide by year from 1999 to 2004. An initial correlation in the Gleason score of 40% was identify by 1999 that increased to 80% by 2003. Considerations in regards to clinical implications, biopsy technique and experience of the pathologist involved in this analysis are made.