Abstract
The aim of this paper is to reveal the wide range of opportunities available for research in art education, with reference to visual and plastic arts. As this involves a general invitation to this area of knowledge as a field of research, the article only points to areas capable of being studied in far greater detail.

Keywords
Art education, artistic knowledge, learning art