Abstract

Ossifying periostitis is an extensive inflammatory new bone formation frequently extensive from soft tissue infection next to these bones. It is more observed in young bovines. A case of post traumatic ossifying periostitis in the right metatarsus of a Holstein cow is described. The diagnosis was made based on clinical and radiographic findings and confirmed surgically.

Keywords

Periosteal reaction, bovine, fistula, radiography.