Abstract

The present article is a discussion of the importance of public space, the States tasks and the usefulness of public action as an instrument of government. The changed reality experienced by public organizations imply their obligation to inspect, update and develop government capacity that guarantee the stability of society, peaceful coexistence and the search for democracy and governability. Contemporary democracies demand institutional efficiency and consistency as a way of life.

Keywords

Public space, government, state, democracy and governability, institutional efficiency.