Abstract
In the last ten years the global perspective on bioethics has experienced an unexpected ascent among Latin American and Caribbean thinkers. Presently it is possible to perceive a tendency in the theoretical conceptual standing and the social practice of researchers and institutions, which is endowed with very inherent and interesting characteristics. The purpose of this work is to incentivate an approach to the way this tendency is becoming manifest in our environs as well as its probable contributions to bioethical discourse.

Keywords
Bioethics, Sustentable, environment, responsability and solidarity.