Abstract
In this article, the relations between the concept of organization and the concepts of dynamic system and complex system are explored. Later the analysis of networks is used to show a quantitative model based on the existence of variables node that play a strong influence on the configuration of the organizacional structure.

Keywords
Dinamyc system, network analisis, organisational system.