Abstract
The idea of that the language has changed the human conscience because allows the development of new thinking forms and acquisition of knowledge, take us to search for a theoretical explanation about the actual relations between the thoughts, language and the possible relation in the determination of actions of a receiver. This article presents a theoretical analysis of various concepts that are part of the language and their potential influence in the communication process.

Keywords
Language, social communication, intercultural language, language theories.