Abstract
The following article focuses on the importance that communication manifested in the fields of politics and organizations. It also analyses the role of strategic communication as a key element in these areas; it is considered that there is still fertile ground both in the field of professional practice and in the literature and research.

Keywords
Strategic communication, organizations, politics.