Abstract
The solar drying is introduced as an engineering administration guided actually to solve two important problems; on one hand to decrease the agricultural products production costs and in the environmental sphere the reduction of emissions of CO2 to the atmosphere in order to reduce gradually the greenhouse effect that affects us globally. It is analyzed a result of obtained information from different projects as well as their sensitive influence in the investments and technological processes.

Keywords
Solar dryers, environment.