Abstract
The characteristics and the content of the CD "Health Information Management" (HIM) as a value teaching tool to support the information literacy process (ILP) and the development of information competences in professionals of Hygiene and Epidemiology as an integral part of National Health System of Cuba. This course is based in the new educational models characterized by a collaboration, open, interactive and experimental learning for life; as well as by the encouragement of the subject autonomy and the development of its critical ability.

Keywords
Information professionals, development of information competences, learning society.