Abstract

The author reflects about how Darwin’s theory of evolution influenced Freud’s work, the understanding of human affective life and the development of Psychoanalysis.