Abstract
Here the diffusion media are treated in its capacity as public and unconventional educators. It treats over the way in wich this information media in comarisson with other social posibilities (family school) participate in the creation of a social-politic conscience. Also it proposess outil wich poit the social instances act as mediative upon the television influence in daily life.