Abstract

This article presents in a brief manner a reflexion about sustainable development. Its hypothesis is centered in that get into such a kind of development is a real application of legal system based on laws and more important is a political will from high spheres of power. The basis of this script comes from the complex idea of the definition of environment, it means that environment can not be isolated from social affairs, using for that questions about inequality, poverty and consumption.

Keywords

Sustainable development, wealth, poverty, ecological print, inequality.