Abstract

Recent advances in studies conducted to determine the molecular basis of the teeth development and the biology of the stem cells, have provided important information that may be used in the future for the regeneration of dental tissue and lost teeth.

Keywords

Biological replacement, teeth, dental tissues.