Abstract

Bucólico (Buscador de Concordancias Lingüísticas en Corpus) is a computational tool which helps organize three linguistic corpora, previously processed and automatically tagged morphosintactically, and it analyzes other linguistic corpora, not computationally tagged though the processing of natural language. The methodological principles of the modern computational corpus linguistics researches about the occurrence of four linguistic features, typically associated with high density, integration, compactness and informational load.

Keywords

- Linguistics informational feature - linguistic corpus - text analysis