Abstract
This paper examines the possibility of the removal of the subsidy to the electric tariff for pumping for irrigation purposes. Benefits are obtained since aquifers are less overexploited and a more efficient use of the water is promoted in rural areas.

Keywords
distorting subsidies, electric tariff, overexploited aquifers, demand for electricity