Abstract

E-learning is more and more becoming one of the best answer to the necessities of professional training of people at different moments from its life. E-learning try to approach the development of the people which for different reasons (because they are workers in active-duty, caretakers, handicaped, people who live in moved away surroundings of educative centers, etc.) they cannot attend the actual training institutions. Since the academic course 2003-2004 the Council of Educación of the Andalusian Government comes supplying the possibility of making Initial Vocational Training through the modality e-learning. Since that year little by little it has been extended the training supply with new modules and cycles. We can say that the experience which now we described in this article, came to represent a pioneering project in Spain, since at the moment of their beginning similar e-learning supplies did not exist. From the birth of the project, they are the six Spanish regions that have initiated similar actions, which little by little is creating a space of collaboration and development between different regions in Spain.

Keywords

Vocational training, e-learning, case study