Abstract
This article aims to provide a historiographical, theoretical and epistemological reflection on colombian pre-hispanic archeology, through a conceptual characterization of the context that determined and until today- determines the plurality of meanings of terms such as space, nature, environment and landscape, and consequently hinders the exchange of information or debates between different archaeological perspectives interested in the "landscape".

Keywords
Colombia, Pre-Hispanic archaeological, landscape, theory and epistemology.
Introducción.