Abstract
This paper approaches the issue on learning communities as a alternative strategy intended to conceptualize and deal with educational practice from a holistic notion of education to address school failure. The paper conceptualizes school failure and learning communities, the necessity to implement those learning communities, and the basic characteristics that should be taken into consideration in implementation.

Keywords
Education, Learning educational, Community Educational, Practice School failure, Learning Communities Context, learning networks.