Abstract

Foundations are non governmental entities; however, during the last 15 years, they have been used in Costa Rica as corporations in charge of managing public economic resources. In others words, their functional and basic reason for existence has been denatured. It is therefore, necessary to create the rules and means for controlling these new entities (public foundations); aspects which we deal with in this article.