Abstract
We are not rich in works about political patronage in Mexico. Contrary to other countries, the majority of references to subject limit them-selves otherwise depending on or containing in general approach that refers the political domination. However this practice was inherent to system in which there was a monopoly of power and related to this the patrimonial use of public resources.

Keywords
political patronage, elections, power, domination, corruption