Abstract
The present article has objective to motivate the reflection about the work category, Its ontological and theoretical content and its relation with the formation of Social Workers. The work as founding category of social being, allows understanding the history of the subject as part of the history of production and reproduction of its living conditions, for that reason the capture of its contents should be discussed in our profession.

Keywords