Abstract

This article shows the results of a research project aimed at investigating some of the ethical orientations that young people from the Pastoral Universitaria of San Pedro’s Parish have. Acquired data indicated that, although ethical and religious tendencies from the target group agreed with certain institutional norms, they also showed some contradictions that could be implied on certain subcultural features.

Keywords

Young people, ethics, religion, subcultures, Catholic Church.