Abstract
The purpose of this paper is to analyze the current epistemological positivism, logical positivism, quantitative and qualitative research related to the concept of science as a system and how are you confused currents specific methods of particular sciences with “quantitative research” and discusses the false tradeoff between the type of research mentioned above.

Keywords
Science as a system, positivism, quantitative and qualitative research, epistemology.