Abstract
In this article the author analyses the state responsibility in the realm of International Human Rights Law, with special emphasis on Inter-American conventional law. This article also specifies the responsibility of national judges with regards to respect and guarantee of the Inter-American system and the minimum standard on this topic laid down by the Inter-American Human Rights Court.

Keywords
State responsibility; international treaties; human rights; judge obligations.