Abstract
It aims to show that the idea of micro segmentarity and could deliver a situational review of current science, characterized by disciplinary divisions and subdivisions that comprise a heterogeneous body, however in practice are interrelated. It is possible to consider the ideas of micro segmentarity and as a concrete possibility to set limits on science in different figures: binary, circular and / or linear, where the vanishing lines appear as a chance to promote transdisciplinarity and at the same time, the dissolution of the boundaries of the special sciences, forming a complex and rhizomatic conception of knowledge about power relations.
