Abstract

The Spanish educational innovation, which was developed, above all, by some teaching staff associations in the 80s, the so-called Pedagogical Renewal Movements, experienced a crisis in the following decade. This article is composed of a reflection based on the different causes that have determined such an annulment within the Spanish context.

Keywords

Teachers training; Educational innovation; pedagogical renewal movements