Abstract

In the last decades, some No Governmental Organizations are beginning to play an important role in the development of tourism. These organizations pretend, through of alternative tourism, help to the local society and at the same time to help the conservation of the environment. We analyzed some problems that are generated in some of these interventions. We will take opinions from the local society to compare with the executors. At the same time we analyze, from the holistic perspective, the all areas where were displaying the interventions process, where there is a relation between tourism and environment.

Keywords

Ecotourism, NGOs, community, Perú, tambopata.