Abstract

Below an uniformity look, the social sciences knowledge within the Arab countries are, instead, multiple. Ideas and formalized knowledge are spread through academic associations, meetings, colloquia and seminaries but also, and moreover, through publications, big newspapers and media. This absolutely unique configuration allows to talk about Arab social sciences and Arab humanities, but it also compels to note the principal variations that shapes them.

Keywords

Arab countries, arab humanities, arab knowledge.