Abstract
This article shows a brief research that has sought the participation of students and teachers of other subjects. The aim is to call the students' attention towards the production of science in an inspiring learning environment as, for example, to take part in a meeting of young researchers.

Keywords
Science, research, motivation, didactic resource, cooperative work, scientific work.